

December 31, 2019

To Whom It May Concern:

I am absolutely thrilled to write a reference letter for Terry Kwan Hiu Hong endorsing his qualification and work ethics during his time as a placement at Accenture from 17 June 2019 to 31 December 2019. As the team lead of the mobile test automation, I had the pleasure of working as Terry's supervisor throughout his six and a half months placement. Out of all the Accenture placements this year, Terry had proven to be one of the most significant placements in terms of commitment and contributions.

Since the mobile test automation was a new initiative, the development process involved research, implementation, and evaluation which required a wide diversity of skills. Terry had continuously impressed me with his learning speed, and more importantly, his willingness to learn and explore new things outside his comfort zone. He took full responsibility and stayed committed to his tasks while working independently, and was able to communicate transparently with teammates when facing difficulties, which is highly commendable as a team player in a dynamic environment.

With Terry's contribution in the project of iOS automated regression test, specifically on building automation scripts in shell scripts, Python, and Fastlane Ruby for DevOps CI/CD; we were able to complete the automated regression test suites ahead of time while maintaining high quality.

While Terry's work ethics and skills were immensely valuable to the project, he was also a wonderful colleague. Optimistic, curious, and easy to get along with, Terry was a true joy to have in the office and fostered many positive relationships with our Accenture onshore colleagues as well as our client company's employees.

With that said, I am highly confident in my recommendation and believe that Terry would be a great fit for wherever he goes. If you would like to speak further about my experience working with Terry, please email me at marco.k.lee@accenture.com or call me at (852) 91019753.

Sincerely,

Marco Kwan Cheng, Lee
Application Development Senior Analyst
Accenture Technology Hong Kong
marco.k.lee@accenture.com
+(852) 91019753